of postmodernism - the casual surrealism of the text, its layered narratives and pastiche of writing styles would not be out of place alongside the works of Robert Coover or John Barth. But what sets Hoffmann's work apart is the meeting of the joint impulses of Enlightenment and Romantic thought, clashing in a tour-de-force of experimental prose, aesthetic thought and pure expression of the spirit.

The Life and Opinions of Zacharias Lichter is a portrait and exploration of a man living true to his searching philosophy, not an entertainer -- though there's an undeniable showmanship element to how he presents and conducts himself. There are few individuals in Lichter's world, with much that the biographer describes a world of 'him' versus and/or in contrast to 'them' (and, often, 'us'); even the biographer is just one more awe-struck follower among presumably many.

Laurence Sterne's great masterpiece of bawdy humour and rich satire defies any attempt to categorize it. Part novel, part digression, its gloriously disordered narrative interweaves the birth and life of the unfortunate 'hero' Tristram Shandy, the eccentric philosophy of his father Walter, the amours and military obsessions of Uncle Toby, and a host of other characters.
